TAKE PHOTOS OF YOUR WALLS

Walk around your home and take images of any blank wall space that would make a good space to display wall art from our session. Be creative! Even small nooks can be instantly transformed by the addition of a photo or cluster of photos.

IT DOESN'T NEED TO BE PERFECT...

Even a smartphone image will do (and might even be easiest because you can upload them directly to your own SENDMYROOMS app!) Regardless of which camera you use, follow these tips to give us the best backdrop to work with during our consultation:

BE A STRAIGHT SHOOTER

Stand directly in front of the wall and take the shot straight on. Our software overlays the images in 2D, so images that are taken at an angle to the wall will not look as realistic as those taken straight across.

WHAT TO INCLUDE

Back up as much as you can to get more of the room details in the image. This imparts a sense of scale to the design software which helps us pick the perfect size for your space! If your camera does not have a wide angle lens, your cell phone may actually be preferable. Try both and see which includes the most in the frame.

TIMING MATTERS

Though we can work with any image, images with as much natural light as possible will look the most realistic. Try to take the images at the time of day when your rooms have the most natural light and avoid flash unless absolutely necessary.

2

MEASURE

In order to calibrate your room images, we need to know the exact width of any one object in the room. This could be the width of your couch, fireplace, table or any element that is up against the wall where the images will be displayed.

Included in your product guide was a cling-on ruler, so be sure to use this in your images, and you won't need to measure a thing!

← TIP:

If there is nothing to measure or you don't have a measuring tape handy, just tape a standard size piece of paper to the wall before taking your picture - we can use that paper as our guide when scaling your image OR use the cling-on ruler included in your product guide!

TAKE NOTE AND SEND!
